It's just that there are no free blocks of time - other than electives in 5th year. Or perhaps we don't do that any more ?

Thank you guys. This was a suggestion from Hill's to utilise some of the in-kind support they are already contracted to provide.

Looks like it may be too hard basket.

Thank for input.

Kind regards

Ellaine

Agree with mark – we should be looking at perhaps having them sponsor an endowed position…..

Hi Ellaine

I don't know if we still do electives in final year but perhaps this could go towards that area if we do?
Otherwise it is not really practical to give a "block" of lectures. There is no spare time for "blocks" in the schedule.
If they want to do that every year we should have the discussion about them funding or part-funding a position – either academic or residency
Would be nice to pick the "distinguished speaker"

Mark

Hi

Hill's have offered to pay for a distinguished speaker (sorry no details yet, just that description) to give students a block of lectures, and / or as development for clinical staff.

Would this be of value? Can they be used to cover something anything in the curriculum?

Let me know if you have any ideas.

Kind regards
